

STREET BUSINESS TAKES MUCH TIME

Council Finds Many Things To Be Decided Relative To The Permanent Improvements.

WALNUT STREET IS ACCEPTED

One Contract On Ewing Is Also Approved and Prima Facie Assessment Rolls are Ordered.

The greater part of the time of the regular council meeting held last night was taken up with the discussion of the improved streets and some of the talks were somewhat heated and bitter. Mayor Swope presided and all the council men were present.

After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, Base, chairman of the finance committee, reported that the city would soon be required to pay for the intersections of the new streets and that this would require more money than the city had on hands, although there was a sufficient amount to tide the administration over till the next council meeting when some provisions would probably be necessary.

Day presented the certificate of the completion of North Ewing street from Seventh to Ninth streets as prepared by the city engineer, and after this was read, introduced a resolution accepting the contract as performed by DeGolyer and Company. The total cost of this contract amounted to $3,192.92 and the prima facie assessment roll was ordered. Sherman Day moved that the city council with the city engineer, inspect the street Monday morning at 9 o'clock and his motion was carried.

Base offered a resolution to appropriate $1,000 from the finance fund to the street fund, and after the rules were suspended the motion was adopted unanimously.

Sherman Day reported that the weeds on South Carter street should be cut and that the ditch southwest of the city should be cleaned, and at his suggestion, the street commissioner was instructed to do the work.

Hodapp, chairman of the park committee, reported that some of the shade trees around the park should be trimmed and that the work had been ordered. He also reported that the city engineer had drawn up plans for the erection of several improvements in the park and moved that the city clerk advertise for bids as soon as the plans were submitted. Upon the motion of Misch, Hodapp's motion was amended so that the plans would be submitted to the council before the bids were advertised for.

Davison stated that last night was the time to hear remonstrance against the preliminary assessment roll of the Jeffersonville improvement, and as no objections were filed, offered a resolution confirming the assessment roll and ordering the clerk to prepare a certified copy of the assessments and file the same with the city treasurer for collection. The cost of the improvement was $2,249.65. City Engineer Douglass reported that he had not prepared the prima facie assessment roll for the north Chestnut street improvement.

PUT OFF TRACTION CAR BECAUSE HE WAS DRUNK.

Jack Smith of Scottsburg Pleads Guilty to the Charge and is Given Usual Fine.

Jack Smith, of Scottsburg, has found out that the I. & L. Traction Company enforces its rule that no person intoxicated can ride upon its cars. Smith came to Seymour Thursday and boarded the car which leaves here about 5:30 for his home. When the car reached Brown street the conductor noticed that he was under the influence of liquor and put him off. The police were notified and Smith was placed in jail over night. This morning he was arranged in Mayor Swope's court and plead guilty to the charge and was given a fine of $1 and costs which were stayed. He said that he was employed at Scottsburg and should be there for work this morning and left shortly after the trial for his home.

The traction companies are following a strict enforcement of the rule that no person shall be a passenger on their cars while in an intoxicated condition, and the conductors have been given instructions to stop the cars and put such passengers off whenever found.

SPECIAL INSTITUTE PRICE ON MARRIAGE LICENSES

Cause of Slow Sales Appeared on Opposite Side of Price Card Thursday.

A few days after the teachers' institute convened at Brownstown, someone printed a sign stating that the stock of marriage licenses was getting low and that parties desiring such papers would do well to purchase them before the stock was completely gone. The sign was prepared for the benefit of the school teachers and was hung upon the door of the office of County Clerk Willard Stout.

After the sign had been exhibited for a short time, some of the teachers believed that the stock of marriage licenses would meet with a more ready sale if a bargain price was placed upon them and some one set a price of 49 cents each as a special during institute week. However, Miss Mary Manion, deputy county clerk, reported that in spite of the bargain price which had been placed upon the licenses, business was slow and only the regular sales were made. This fact evidently became known among the teachers and the reason for the sad state of affairs was made known by a sign which appeared yesterday upon the reverse side of the card and read: "We proposed, but they refused."

Sunday Sermon.

Dr. D. L. Thomas, pastor of the First M. E. church, will give an address Sunday evening upon the labor question of today. Dr. Thomas has given this problem special attention and having considerable experience himself, is well informed upon all phases of the question and invites all laboring men of the city to hear his sermon.

Seba A. Barnes returned Thursday afternoon from Greensburg where he assisted the prosecution in the Price murder trial. Mr. Barnes was also employed by the prosecution in the first trial held several weeks ago. At both trials he made the principal speeches for the state.

COOPERATE WITH COMMERCIAL CLUB

Seymour Public Service Company Employs Man to Assist In Development of the City.

SEYMOUR HAS ADVANTAGES

These Will Be Impressed On Manufacturers Whose Business is Adapted to Local Conditions.

The Seymour Public Service Company has inaugurated a commendable piece of enterprise on its part. In connection with the Public Service Companies in other cities controlled by the same interests, Mr. S. A. Moore, of Chicago, has been employed for the purpose of aiding the Seymour Commercial Club in locating any factory prospects and to assist in promoting any enterprise which will help to build up the city. He holds himself in readiness to follow up any suggestions made by our Commercial Club at any time.

Mr. Moore was in Seymour this week and met several of our citizens. He made a favorable impression upon those whom he met as a man of good judgment and experience. His business will be to investigate plants adapted to local conditions, and having found these plants to show them the advantages which will come to them from locating here. He says rightly that the natural advantages of a town ought to be sufficient inducement for these factories to locate; and that as a rule a bonus proposition is only a temporary arrangement and at the expiration of the contract period the factory receiving the bonus is ready for another proposition.

Mr. Moore speaks very favorably of the natural advantages which Seymour has to offer as to location, railroad facilities, public service utilities, nearness to coal fields, etc. He believes that ultimately he can put Seymour in touch with some prospects that are worth while and holds himself ready to assist in any proposition which our Commercial Club may have under consideration. This is to be done without expense to Seymour, as he is an employee of the Public Service Company, and the company expects to make good through the increased business which the growth of the city will bring them. Along with this growth will come a similar growth to every business interest in the city. Mr. Moore does not make any pretense to landing big propositions immediately but puts himself in a position to cooperate with our citizens and to be on the look out constantly for propositions which in his judgment will be advantageous to our city.

The Public Service Company is to be congratulated upon its enterprise in employing a man for this purpose and in the end it will doubtless profit through the increased business which the growth of Seymour will bring them.

FESTIVAL PLANS HANG IN A BALANCE

Committee Will Probably Make Definite Decision Before Saturday Night.

SHORT TIME IS A DRAWBACK

Some Believe That Big Event Could Be Arranged and Well Advertised in Five or Six Weeks.

Plans for the proposed festival this fall are still "up in the air" as the members of the committee have not come to a definite decision. The finance committee, which was appointed by the general committee Wednesday night, has made a canvass of some of the business men and find that they are not only willing, but anxious to have some sort of an entertainment this fall and practically everyone, who was approached, agreed to donate liberally.

The only question which seems to stand in the way is that of time. A number of the business men are strongly in favor of a festival, but believe that the time is too short to advertise it in the proper way and to make all the arrangements which would be required. Other members of the committee, however, declare that the festival would not be given until the middle or probably the latter part of October and that the entire county could be covered with advertisements in a few days' time.

There is one thing that has been decided and that is if the festival is given and free entertainments are se-

JENNINGS COUNTY MAN FOUND GUILTY

Zachariah T. Price Convicted of voluntary Manslaughter For Killing of Fletcher Cook.

WAS MURDERED IN DEC

Wife Collapsed in Court Room. The Verdict Was Read.—husband Was Calm.

GREENSBURG, Ind., August 30.—The jury in the case of Zachariah Price, of Buttsville, Jennings county charged with the killing of Fletcher Cook, an employe on his farm, last December, returned a verdict of involuntary manslaughter last night. Mrs. Price collapsed when the verdict was read, but Price appeared calm.

This is the second trial of this case, which came from Decatur county on a change of venue. The jury in the first trial stood six for conviction and six for acquittal. The sentence will be passed by Judge Davidson some time today and Price's attorneys have not fully decided whether or not to ask for a new trial. The penalty for involuntary manslaughter is two to twenty-one years.

The trial was hard fought, there being a strong array of legal talent for both the defense and prosecution.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR BIG POULTRY SHOW

Special Lecturers Here For Boys' and Girls' Contest at Consolidated School Tomorrow.

The boys' and girls' poultry contest at the Consolidated school house will be held tomorrow. The committee having charge of the show erected the stands today and have everything in readiness for the entries. It is expected that a large number of Jackson county people will attend. Prof. Otis Crane, of Purdue university, will give an address on "Poultry" and lectures will also be given on agriculture and other subjects of interest to farmers. Joe A. Barton, the well known orchardist, of Mitchell, is here to attend the show and will probably make an address tomorrow. All persons making entries are requested to have them at the grounds as early as possible.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson IX. September 1
DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST. Mark 6:14-29

GOLDEN TEXT.—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Rev. 2:10.

This lesson is a look backward to the murder of John the Baptist and the cause of it. Tidings of the mighty works done by Jesus and His followers had reached the ears of King Herod, and he was perplexed and thought that John must be risen from the dead. Others said, "It is Elijah," and all others said, "It is one of the old prophets risen again." Herod said, "John have I beheaded, but who is of whom I hear such things?" (Mark ix, 7-9.) It is said that he desired to see Him, and when just before His crucifixion Pilate sent Him to Herod, who was in Jerusalem at that time, it is written that he was edifyingly glad for he was desirous to see Him of a long season, because he had heard many things of Him.

He had also seen some miracle done by Him (Luke xxiii, 8). Herod's question, "Who is this?" is one of the freest of all questions. We find it in Luke xxv, 21, in connection with His becoming surety for His people; in Luke xlii, 1, in connection with His coming in judgment; in Luke v, 21, in connection with His forgiving sins; and in Luke vii, 49, also; in Matt. xvi, 16, as He entered Jerusalem on the ass; and in Matt. xxv, 12, as all who know Him, not only as Israel's Messiah, but as great head of the church and the King of kings and Lord of lords, as their own personal Savior, who became surety for them, and was slain in His own body and blood, and who forgave them of their sins. Apart from this personal knowledge of Him as the one who loved us and gave Himself for us (Gal. ii, 20), all else is as nothing.

There are many reasons to tell us why Herod was so desirous to see John. He had taken Herodias, the sister of Philip's wife, to be his wife, and John had told him that it was not lawful to do this. Therefore, Herod had an inward grudge against John and would have killed him if he could (verse 19, margin). But Herod, knowing John to be a just and holy man, heard him gladly and did many things and kept and saved him (verse 20, margin). Thus things went on, Herod knowing and admiring the right, yet doing the wrong, and Herodias a sort of Jezebel to help him in the wrong, and the devil controlling all. What a picture of our life it is, for the devil is still the god of this world, and the world lies in the wicked one!

Now we have an account of one of the darkest and most terrible occasions—Herod's birthday and a supper for his lords, high captains, and chief estates of Galilee. It must have been a great occasion, for the notable people of the country, which multitudes would come to be invited—a kind of banquet—feast on a smaller scale than the same spirit of impious regard of God. Oh, how much of it today and even tomorrow, who are called Christians! But the world is ever the same, whether paganism or the religious world, and all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

"The friendship of the world is enmity with God" (John ii, 15-17; Jas. iv, 4). The world would not doubt be royal wine in abundance according to the state of the king, and the eating and drinking would be according to every man's pleasure (1st. i, 7, 8). There was some special dancing also, and the daughter of Herodias danced so well that the king said unto her with an oath, "Whichever thou shalt ask of me I will give it thee unto the half of my kingdom" (verses 22, 23). Being instructed by her mother, she asked for the head of John the Baptist in a charger. The king's order must be obeyed, and immediately the executioner goes his awful work, and the grudge of the wicked Herodias is gratified as she obtains possession of the head of him she so hated for daring to rebuke her sin. Naboth's death at the hands of Jezebel or by her command was somewhat on the same line of things, as far as the death of the innocent and unoffending to please the wicked was concerned. But the great murderer has been at work ever since he caused the death of Abel, and he is not through yet. Those who are willing to do his work cannot complain if some time they share his doom in the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels. It was a wretched birthday for Herod.

and we saw at the beginning of our lesson that he could not forget his part in the murder of John. He has not forgotten it yet, for we conclude from Luke xvi, 25, that memory plays a very important part in the torment of the lost. Although it seemed hard for John to be thus taken off the earth, it was in reality a good day for him, for he had the gain, the very father of Phil. i, 21, 23, and he has been well and happy ever since, and the glory of the kingdom still awaits him. His disciples buried his body, but John was not at the burial. It has long been a comfort to me to consider that if the Lord does not come while I live and this mortal body shall some day be buried I will not be at the funeral, but absent from the body, present with the Lord.

THE LESSON QUIZ.

Sept. 1, 1912.

(Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Lincoff, D. D.)

The Death of John the Baptist. Mark vi:14-29. (May be used as a temperance lesson.)

Golden Text.—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life. Rev. ii:10.

(1) Verse 14—Who was King Herod and how did the fame of Jesus affect him?

(2) What other examples can you give of the results of an aroused conscience?

(3) Verse 15—How do you account for the variety of opinions which the people had concerning Jesus?

(4) Verse 16—What are the possibilities of conscience in tormenting bad men?

(5) If a man's conscience is clear, so matter how startling an event may be, is he ever likely to be afraid? (See Prov. xxviii:1.)

(6) Verse 17—Why did Herod put John in prison?

(7) Is a good man always under obligation to reprove evil even if he risks his life in doing it? Why?

(8) Is it the duty of a good man to reprove all the bad men he knows? Why?

(9) Did John's reproof of Herod have a good or a bad effect upon him? Give your reasons.

(10) In what way should we follow Christ's command, "Neither cast ye your pearls before swine lest they trample them under their feet and turn again and rend you?"

(11) Verse 18—Would you say, or not, and why, that notwithstanding the results, John's action was wise?

(12) State the circumstances and say why it was wrong for Herod to marry his brother's wife.

(13) Even if an act may not be wrong in itself, is it ever wise, or not, and why, for a person to do that which outrages the moral sense of the community?

(14) Ought a man or a woman, even for just cause, ever seek a divorce for the purpose of marrying another? Why?

(15) Verses 19-20—When a person is reproved for his sin and does not repent how does he generally feel toward the reprover?

(16) If Herod had such faith in the goodness of John why did he put him in prison?

(17) How much virtue is there in doing some things that are right if the life in the main is wrong?

(18) Verses 21-22—What is the general influence of having big dinners or suppers at anniversaries in the home?

(19) It was a Greek custom after a banquet to have professional women dance in a mimetic and licentious way. What would be the effect of such dancing?

(20) When a man is under the influence of wine and a licentious dance what would you say as to the goodness of his resolutions?

(21) What is the influence today of drink and dancing?

(22) Verses 23-29—Would Herod have given the order to have John beheaded if he had not been under the influence of passion? Why?

(23) What were the steps that led up to the brutalizing of this woman's nature, which caused her to demand John's head on a charger? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Lesson for Sunday, Sept. 8, 1912. The Mission of the Twelve. Matt. ix:35-x:15; x:40-xi:1.

BUSIEST DEPOT IN WORLD

Gare St. Lazare in Paris Handles Forty-five Million Persons Annually—Other Busy Stations.

If the world's biggest station is that one with the greatest passenger traffic, the Gare St. Lazare, Paris, is easily first, with its forty-five million annually. It is a case of "Eclipse first—the rest nowhere."

At Waterloo, Liverpool street and Euston, in London—admittedly the busiest English railway termini—35,000,000 would probably be the very outside number thus dealt with in a year; while the Waverly station, Edinburgh, boasts of 16,000,000 passengers. Broad Street station, Philadelphia, is the largest United States station with regard to the number of passengers it records in a year, and also as to the number of trains daily arriving or departing. The chief station in Turin, Italy, stands high among continental ones with its 11,000,000, while Cologne station officially puts its passenger traffic at over 7,000,000, which is slightly exceeded by Berlin's best aggregate of 7,500,000. Of all stations in the "Land of Promise," the Canadian Pacific railway station in Winnipeg conducts the largest traffic in this way, and probably its estimate of 8,000,000 of people passing through each year is not excessive.

If this calculation be based upon the number of trains going through as well as moving in and out, junctions can be included, and, judged in this way, Clapham Junction, England, with 2,500 trains daily, is easily first. "The next then in order under the same head are Cologne, with 1,200 trains; Liverpool Street, New York city, and Gare St. Lazare, with about 1,000 daily. Waterloo can boast of 900 trains as a daily average in and out. Waverly station, Edinburgh, 500; the Vienna station 450, and Euston about the same number."

DESCRIBING THE ANIMAL DOG

His Names Derived From the Latin Word Canic and He Comes in All Sizes and Shapes.

The dog is a carnivorous quadruped, and comes in many sizes and shapes. His name is derived from the Latin word canic, meaning dog. We would start with the greyhound, but we are afraid we cannot keep up with him, as he is a very rapid old dog. Instead, let us discuss the dachshund. The dachshund, a German creation, is a crazy-looking specimen of a dog. His name translated, means "animated frankfurter." He has the longest span between abutments of anything known to man except the Brooklyn bridge. Pat him on the head and he will wiggle his tail five minutes later. Dachshunds do not thrive in small flats. That is because going out of one door of a room they often meet themselves coming in another, and the frequent collisions cause softening of the brain.

A bulldog is a fat, bowlegged creature with a painful-looking face. The shortness of his limbs is due to the fact that Noah so disliked the looks of his original ancestor that he refused to admit him to the ark, and his long swim to Ararat caused rheumatism, which drew the legs to their present size. His bored and blase expression is attributed to his long residence in Boston.

Dogs sometimes take a strong aversion to water, so that the mere mention makes them mad. You can tell when a dog is mad by letting him bite you. If the bite causes no trouble you will know that the dog was only acting in a spirit of fun. A mad dog should not associate with children, as it annoys and irritates them. —Carleton G. Garrison in Judge.

Turning the Tables.

Ripley Hitchcock, the literary critic and adviser, of New York, was talking at the Century club, about a well-to-do author whose work was falling off.

"His case," said Mr. Hitchcock, "reminds me of a young landscape painter."

"Yes," the young man said to me at a studio tea—he was devouring lettuce sandwiches ravenously at the time—yes, I got bad pay for good work, but nevertheless I am content."

"Content in your love of art?" I inquired.

"Crushing a handful of macaroons into his mouth, he answered: 'Content in the thought that if I live long enough I'll get good pay for bad work.'"

Mistook Mule for Horse.

The activities of a vandal, who attempted in the dark to cut off the tail of a Missouri mule in the belief that it was a horse, were foiled by the mule's heels.

The victim, who is slowly recovering from the shock in the hospital department of the county jail, has confided to his attendant his astonishment that he is alive to tell the tale.

Marshall, Mo., has been in a turmoil of excitement for two days because of the exploits of some one who has been systematically clipping the tails and manes of about 50 horses in the western part of town.

At the Soiree.

Economical Father (to his daughter, sotto voce)—I say, Alice, play some song that everybody can sing. They're doing nothing but eating and drinking.—Fliegende Blätter.

EMBLEM OF CROSS A SIGNAL FOR MURDER

Further Details of Recent Albanian Massacres.

Rome, Aug. 29.—Harrowing details of massacres of Christians by Turks and Mohammedan Albanians are printed by the Corriere Dello Pagle of Bari, where, owing to its nearness, Albanian news often arrives without necessarily being authentic.

After the retreat of the Montenegrins from Berana, according to the Corriere's informants, ferocious hordes invaded the town and set fire to every house where the emblem of the cross was found and butchered the inhabitants. The charred bodies of many women were found hanging to trees. Between August 18 and 23, according to the story, fourteen villages were sacked and 150 wounded Christians swelled the ranks of refugees in Montenegro. Their stories of outrages infuriated the Montenegrins, who determined to save their brethren and rushed to the frontier and recaptured Berana by assault. The Albanians are watching developments closely.

WHAT S.S.S. STANDS FOR

The familiar letters, S. S. S., stand for Swift's Sure Specific, a name honestly and fairly earned by a great blood remedy. It is worthy of its title because it really CURES every ailment resulting from impure blood. The majority of physical afflictions are caused by bad blood, because a weak, polluted circulation deprives the system of its necessary strength and disease-resisting powers. S. S. S. cures every disorder which comes from weak or diseased blood, it tones up and regulates every portion of the system, and creates an abundant supply of nourishing properties which fill the circulation and bring health to the body. S. S. S. is made entirely of healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, which are also possessed of great tonic properties. It does not contain a particle of mineral or other harmful drug, and is therefore the purest and safest blood medicine for young or old. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Malaria and all other troubles of a deranged circulation. Write for free book on the blood and any medical advice. No charge for either.

TAFT DEFENDS RECENT VETOES

The President Becomes Personal at Columbus.

THE USE OF THE VETO POWER

"A Good Executive," Says Mr. Taft, "Must Practice Individual Self-Restraint, Weigh What He Is Told and Then Do What He Believes Is True." —"It Is Well to Make Progress Slowly," He Says.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 30.—The series of ovations tendered President Taft on his visit to this city yesterday must have gladdened his heart. The president came to participate in the Ohio-Columbus centennial and the state fair. He was received with great enthusiasm. Within an hour and a half 5,000 persons shook hands with him at the statehouse, and when the line was halted half twice as many people remained waiting. It is estimated that over 60,000 persons were at the state fair. Nearly as many saw him while passing about the city streets.

In one of his addresses the president took occasion to warmly defend his recent vetoes and to uphold the veto principle. When he appeared in the grandstand at the state fair, thundering and long continued applause greeted him. The applause which punctuated his remarks, however, was noticeably weak. There was enthusiasm manifested by the farmers, however, when he referred to the proposed plan to bring about a credit system which will benefit the farmers. The president turned from the subject of farming by referring to Ohio's centennial, difficulties in government during its early history, and of the use of the veto power by Governor Sinclair. Then in referring to his own use of the veto, he said:

"I think I have used it moderately, though some of my friends do not agree. They have said that if I were a king and should do what I have done my head would drop in a basket. But I am not a king. I am a president elected by the people and representing a greater proportion of the people than any legislator. The president, therefore, is responsible to a greater extent for legislation which is passed than any other single person."

"The trouble with some legislation is that it is too much like the reformers who want every reform put into effect tomorrow morning before breakfast. It is well to make progress slowly, but to be sure we are making it. Change is not progress."

Concluding his defense of his use of the veto, he said: "A good executive must practice individual self-restraint, weigh what he is told and then do what he believes is true. God is on the side of popular government, and it is making progress slowly but surely."

Returning to the city after an inspection of the fair, President Taft held a public reception and then gave a few hours to political conferences prior to the banquet last night tendered him by the bench and bar. There had been 200 acceptances, a large number of those invited declining because they considered the cost per plate, $10, excessive. Governor Harmon was toastmaster and the guest list included many from out of the city.

OLD CRIME RECALLED

Convict Still Denies Knowledge of Father's Murder.

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 30.—A petition has been filed with the state pardon board by William Hull and Mrs. M. I. Keeper of Kimmunity, Ill., for the pardon of their brother, Samuel R. Hull of Gibson county, who is serving a life sentence in the prison here for the murder of his father. Hull was killed when driving his horse home. The son was arrested and convicted. He protested his innocence at the trial, and has continued to assert that he knows nothing of his father's murder, which occurred fifteen years ago. The father and son had had trouble a short time before the tragedy, and the son was ordered to leave home and never return.

Another Aviator Falls.
Waynesburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—Aviator Joe Stevenson, who came from Minnola, L. I., to give exhibitions at the county fair here, was probably fatally crushed when his biplane dropped 100 feet, after his engine went dead.

CUBANS DELIBERATELY PROVOKING AMERICANS

A Dangerous State of Feeling Aroused in Havana.

Havana, Aug. 30.—The leniency of the authorities here toward the reporter who assaulted Hugh S. Gibson, the American charge d'affaires, in first releasing him on his own recognizance, then re-arresting him on a protest from the American legation and again liberating him on the minimum lawful bail and the government's tacit indorsement of the absurd allegations that the United States is wantonly humiliating Cuba by compelling the payment of long overdue debts, is encouraging the newspapers into making the vilest attacks on Mr. Gibson and Americans generally. This is provoking a most dangerous state of feeling between the Americans and Cubans.

The editorial articles in the newspapers are mostly of a very gross and insulting character to Americans and the American government.

A CONCLUSIVE TEST

This Inventor Claimed Safety Was the Chief Advantage of His Explosive.

Milan, Aug. 30.—The Marquis Imperiali, the inventor of the new explosive, Imperialite, was blown to atoms by his own invention while working in his factory at Montreliari. The factory was destroyed by the explosion. The marquis claimed that one of the chief advantages of Imperialite was that it could be handled and moved with absolute safety.

The Vicksburg Is Safe.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 30.—The United States gunboat Vicksburg, about whose safety fears were entertained, is reported as having arrived at Guaymas, on the west coast of Mexico. The Vicksburg was reported damaged while on the way to aid the wrecked freighter Pleiades, at Magdalena bay.

Central Electric Traffic Association.
South Bend, Ind., Aug. 30.—More than 200 members of the Central Electric Traffic association, which embraces the railway lines of the central states, are here to attend sessions of the organization.

CHARGE MADE OF STOCK JUGGLING

Suit to Set Aside Merger of Traction Companies.

A CONSPIRACY IS ALLEGED

Action to Set Aside the Agreement of Consolidation Executed Last Spring by the Officers of the Union Traction Company of Indiana and the Indiana Union Traction Company Has Been Brought at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—Suit to set aside the agreement of consolidation executed last spring by the officers of the Union Traction company, whereby the two companies were merged into the Union Traction company, has been brought in superior court by Alice Norton, the owner of 180 shares of common stock in the original Union Traction Company of Indiana. She was one of the stockholders who sought to prevent the consolidation last spring by receivership and injunction proceedings in the federal court. This suit was dismissed by the plaintiffs after the court had overruled a motion for a temporary restraining order.

The charges made in the present complaint are similar to those made in the federal court suit and in a suit filed by Alexander W. Thompson and George J. Marott in the circuit court, asking that a receiver be appointed for the Indiana Union Traction company and to enjoin the two companies from merging. The plaintiffs in the latter suit do not recognize the consolidation effected last spring. This suit is now pending. Charges of the juggling of the two companies' stocks and bonds by the officers of the companies and of a conspiracy to put through the consolidation in order to save the bondholders of the Indiana Union Traction company from loss are made by the plaintiff.

BARNYARD COOPERATION

Hog and Weasel Form a Curious Partnership.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Aug. 29.—Justice of the Peace John W. Probst discovered a queer animal friendship between a large Chester White hog and a big weasel. They have been feasting for several days from Probst's poultry yard. Probst had missed about fifty of his choice chickens, and after a vigilant watch he discovered the hog catching the chickens and saw the weasel come through a hole under the barn floor. The little animal would cut the throats of the chickens and suck the blood, after which the hog would devour the body and then hide the feathers in the mud in the hog pen. After eating three chickens the hog lay down in the sun and the weasel got busy and began scratching the back of the hog, much to the delight of both animals. Armed with a pitchfork, Probst killed the weasel, but was attacked by the hog and knocked down. After a hard fight Probst escaped from the pen. After the death of the weasel the hog refused to eat and continued to grunt and squeal day and night until Probst had to sell it to a butcher. Probst sold the hog for $18 and the weasel for $2. He valued the chickens these "affinities" destroyed at $50.

Runaway Mules Kill Child.

Worthington, Ind., Aug. 29.—The six-year-old daughter of William Rhodes, a farmer of Smith township, was instantly killed by a team of mules running away with a farm wagon. The child's head was crushed. The mules frightened at the whistle of a steam thrashing machine and ran into a crowd of women and children who stood near. All managed to get out of the way except the little girl.

Auto and Motorcycle Collide.

Crown Point, Ind., Aug. 29.—In a collision between auto and motorcycle, Mrs. Fred Nau was probably fatally injured. Four others were slightly hurt. Fred Nau sought to avoid collision with Fred Lee, who was riding a motorcycle. His auto skidded down an embankment and overturned on the occupants. Lee also was injured.

Another Victim of Lightning.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 29.—Isiah Christophel, a wealthy farmer near Wakarusa, was killed by lightning. A storm has swept over northern Indiana every other day for ten days. Heavy rainfall and lightning accompany the storms and several people have been killed and the property loss is heavy.

Baby Burned to Death.

Walton, Ind., Aug. 29.—Fire destroyed the log cabin occupied by William Bowyer, and a fifteen-months-old baby was burned to death. Bowyer, Mrs. Bowyer and two children were badly burned and Bowyer's burns may prove fatal.

Medicine Within Baby's Reach.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 29.—Lucia Jasieks, twenty-two months old, swallowed ten or twelve strychnine pills and died four hours later.

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—Demarchus C. Brown, state librarian, was knocked down by a motorcycle while crossing a street. His wrist was broken.

AMERICAN LIFE AND PROPERTY

In Nicaragua Now Are Considered Safe.

OUR FLAG'S SOBERING EFFECT

Prompt Disposal of American Marines and Bluejackets at Points of Greatest Disturbance in Troubled Central American Republic Has Conveyed to the Trouble Makers the Impression That Uncle Sam Means Business.

Panama, Aug. 30.—It is rumored here that fifty American marines have been killed in Nicaragua.

Washington, Aug. 30.—According to dispatches received at the navy department the acuteness of the situation in Nicaragua has been greatly moderated by events of the last twenty-four hours. Communications are rapidly being restored and the program of the American forces in opening up the country from the coast to the capital has been begun. Dispatches from Admiral Sutherland, who arrived Wednesday on the cruiser California and who has assumed command of the American forces, brought the most positively reassuring news that has been received from Nicaragua in several weeks. The admiral stated that a force of 500 marines and bluejackets, under command of Admiral Terhune of the Annapolis, is already at work repairing the railroad and telegraph lines between Corinto and Managua. When this work is accomplished and further reinforcements are sent to Managua, the admiral states that American life and property along the line of the railroad will be safe.

Admiral Sutherland stated that the situation necessitated the placing of American forces at Leon and other places between that city and Corinto now held by the rebels. Commander Terhune has been placed in command of this force and his men are already on the job. They are repairing the telegraph and railroad lines which were willfully destroyed in places by the rebels to cut off the communications of the Americans. Terhune, the admiral states, will keep the railroad open to Managua at all hazards.

The American forces now in Nicaragua total about 1,000 marines and bluejackets. The reinforcements coming on the California will bring the total up to nearly 2,000, with several hundred more available on the several warships at Corinto and vicinity if they are needed.

A dispatch from Minister Weitzel stated that he had just been informed by the government that another attack upon Managua was threatened. A demand for the surrender of Corinto was made by a rebel commission on the 25th, according to a report from Consul Johnson at Corinto. The commandant refused and told the commission that the city was under the protection of the American forces. The next day the commission returned again to treat with the Americans in the name of General Francisco Vaca. They were informed by Consul Johnson that the American authorities would permit no armed force to enter Corinto. To make sure of this prohibition, two six-pounder guns were sent to a long railroad bridge near Corinto and mounted on the end of the bridge nearest Corinto, and a force of Americans stationed with the guns.

Lament Loss of a Frolic.

Colon, Aug. 30.—The United States troops in the canal zone who received orders to take ship for Nicaragua loudly lamented the countermanding of the orders. The receipt of the first orders occasioned intense excitement, accompanied as it was with rumors of attacks upon American troops. One report said Commander Terhune had attacked Leon and had been repulsed.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS

Marauding Bands Continue to Give Trouble on the Border.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Federal troops have been sent by the Mexican government to protect two Americans, Frank Curtis and Arthur Cunningham, who have been reported in danger at a point between Hermosillo and Nogales, in Sonora. Curtis and Cunningham are understood to have killed several rebels in self-defense and have since been sought by rebel bands, who have declared they intend to avenge the death of their comrades.

General Steever reports that disorder along the border is increasing. Small bands are constantly raiding, mostly on the Mexican side of the line, but sometimes on the American side, according to the army reports. Dispatches report that 1,800 rebels were repulsed at Alamos, with a loss of 300. Fifteen marauders were killed to the last man near Fabicora, after attacking men of the Richardson Construction company. Seventy rebels who attempted to capture Fabicora were repulsed with casualties.

The Colonel in Vermont.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 30.—On the opening day of the Vermont campaign Colonel Roosevelt covered 150 miles by auto and made eight speeches, not counting the few words of greeting he had for the groups who had gathered at village cross-roads.

MISS JULIA C. LATHROP.

Named by the President as Head of Children's Bureau.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Miss Julia O. Lathrop, chief of the new children's bureau, has taken up temporary headquarters in the department of commerce and labor, preparatory to organizing the bureau office staff and working forces. With the passage of the legislative appropriation bill salaries for officers became available and the chief bar to commencing work was removed. Miss Lathrop has already selected an assistant, private secretary and statistician.

SOUTH CAROLINIANS TELL EDITOR TO "GIT"

They Didn't Like One of His Political Editorials.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 30.—The citizens of Anderson, resenting what they believed an insinuation, against the womanhood of South Carolina, issued an ultimatum to Colonel William Banks, editor of the local afternoon paper, that he leave the city before tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ultimatum followed a turbulent gathering, brought about by an editorial in which it was stated that of the virtuous womanhood of South Carolina 85 per cent were for Ira B. Jones for governor. This was taken as an insult to the wives of those supporting Blease and led up to the demonstration. Editor Banks has disavowed any reflection on the women, but Blease supporters say he must leave or take the consequences.

Governor Blease may yet fall of the governorship of this state, even though he has a majority of about 2,000, for there is strong probability that the state Democratic committee may throw out enough returns to cause the nomination of Judge Ira B. Jones. The state chairman, former Governor John G. Evans of Spartanburg, has received reports from all parts of the state of wholesale fraud in the election, and when the state committee meets these protested votes will be considered. It is considered that the total vote is out of all proportion to the state's population and that a recount will be ordered.

He Will Appeal Case.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 29.—Wilbur G. Houk, attorney of this city, a strong advocate of socialism, was fined 1 cent and costs, making $25.01 in all, on a charge of obstructing the sidewalk. Houk was arguing politics in front of a hotel and a large crowd gathered to hear him. He will appeal to the circuit court.

ARBITRATION IS NOW DEMANDED

Great Britain Will Contest O Canal Policy.

FATE OF TREATIES INVOLVED

It is Pointed Out That if This Government Should Refuse to Submit Arbitration the Delicate Question Raised by England, Neither Lathrop Country Nor France Could Self-Respect, Renew Treaties.

Washington, Aug. 29.—In a note received from the British embassy state department has just been notified that Great Britain will submit arbitration in the controversy with United States over legislation passed by congress granting free passage through the Panama canal to American ships.

The note, which was signed by A. Mitchell Innes, charge d'affaires of the legation, was brief and, like the first informal protest against the then pending canal legislation of July 8, gave promise that a further communication from Great Britain is to follow. It is stated that the British government, in view of the enactment by congress of the legislative provisions against which protest was made on July 8, again calls the attention of the United States government to the view of Great Britain upon the subject with reference to the alleged violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

It is stated that the British government will make a careful study of the provisions of the bill and the reasoning advanced by President Taft in support of the action of the United States in favor of American ships. If an irreconcilable divergence of view of the treaty and the bill continues to exist after such study, it is declared that arbitration of the question will be expected.

No reply, beyond an acknowledgment of the receipt of this note, will be sent Mr. Innes by the state department. The promise contained in the note of a further communication is regarded as making any action by the state department unnecessary at this time.

Consequently the state department and the president are to have a breathing spell before being confronted with a demand for arbitration of the controversy over the treaty. Upon the answer which is made to Great Britain, it is expected that the future arbitration policy of the United States will depend. It has already been predicted by senators that if the United States should refuse to arbitrate that it would mean the death of the nation's arbitration treaties with the powers. The one with Great Britain expires in June next and the one with France in March of next year. These treaties could not well be renewed by either France or Great Britain in self-respect if the United States declined to arbitrate the canal question.

Fallacious Contention, He Says.

London, Aug. 29.—M. Bunau Villard, writing to the Shipping World in regard to the Panama canal law, seeks to show where the fallacy lies in the contention that the exemption of American coastwise vessels from dues cannot be a grievance of other users of the canal, because foreigners are debarred from American coastwise trade and therefore are not discriminated against.

FAILS TO REPORT

Fear Expressed For Fate of Damaged Gunboat Vicksburg.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 29.—Fear is expressed for the damaged gunboat Vicksburg, because every effort to get in touch with the vessel since Tuesday has failed. A message from the stranded freighter Pleiades, which went ashore near the entrance to Magdalena bay, has been received. It stated that the Vicksburg had not reached Magdalena bay, as was reported. Neither the flagship California of the Pacific fleet, the cruiser Denver, the collier Prometheus nor the supply ship Glacier, all supposed to be somewhere near Magdalena bay, have answered wireless calls since Tuesday.

Held at Hot Springs.

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 29.—Suspected of being Gyp the Blood and Lefty Louie, Postmaster Fred Johnson, who holds a commission as United States marshal, has two visitors to this city under detention and is holding them pending the arrival of representatives from District Attorney Whitman's office.

Another Victim of Aviation.

OLDEST MASON IN SCOTT COUNTY PASSED AWAY

Thomas Hughbanks, Well Known Here, Died Thursday Afternoon at His Home in Scottsburg.

Thomas Hughbanks, said to be the oldest Mason in Scott county, died about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon at his home in Scottsburg, after an illness of several weeks. He was seventy-seven years of age and was one of the pioneer business men of that county. He was well known in Seymour and Jackson county, having visited here many times.

Mr. Hughbanks was a native of Scott county, and established a mercantile business at Austin when that place was the principal trading center and before Scottsburg was a town. He continued this business for many years and later moved to Scottsburg where he engaged in business. About seven years ago he retired from active business life. He became a member of Scott county lodge F. & A. M. No. 20 when the lodge was located at the old town of Frankfort. He was always much interested in the work of that order and belonged to no other fraternal organization. He had long been a member of the Methodist church and was a sincere christian man.

His wife died in February 1900 and he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. E. Graham, of Seymour, Mrs. Ida Whitsett and Miss Blanche Hughbanks, of Scottsburg, and two sons, E. L. of Scottsburg, and W. C., of Evansville.

The funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the M. E. church at Scottsburg, conducted by the pastors of the Methodist churches of Scottsburg and Austin. The Masonic lodge of which he was so long a member, will have charge of the services at the grave.

Endorses Resolution.

Rev. H. R. Booch, pastor of the St. Paul Evangelical church, has submitted the following communication in which he endorses the resolution of the W. C. T. U. regarding street fairs.

To the Editor of the Republican:

Permit me to express to you and the readers of your paper my hearty approval of the opinion of some ladies and mothers of our city, stated in your paper of the 29th, concerning the contemplated carnival.

One home and family at least of our beloved Seymour is today still suffering because of the dastardly work of a criminal who operated here two weeks ago. And a carnival as generally conducted would very likely draw just such vile characters to our city in great numbers.

Let us do everything possible to advertise our town but do it only by clean, educating and "day-light" means. We pray, "lead us not into temptation," are we going to act just contrary to this petition?

H. R. Booch.

WARNING GIVEN AGAINST CURES

State Condemns Sale of Advertised Fakes.

ARE WORSE THAN USELESS

Paying Particular Attention to the False and Misleading Advertisements of Manufacturers of So-Called Consumption "Cures," State Board of Health Has Prepared a Bulletin Exposing Such Nostrums.

Indianapolis, Aug. 30.—W. D. McAbee, drug chemist of the state board of health, has completed a part of the forthcoming bulletin from the office of the state food and drug commissioner, which deals with and condemns so-called consumption cures and warns sufferers from this disease against the purchase of "cures" which are oftentimes advertised for sale in glowing terms. The bulletin says:

"The despondent condition of the victims of the white plague renders them easily susceptible to the alluring advertisements which represent them as a positive cure, although our physicians have told them that no medicine can possibly help, and that the only cure is open air, quiet and a wholesome diet. The manufacturers of these so-called consumption cures have done much to increase the death rate from tuberculosis by their assurance that their 'dope' will cure, thereby causing the patient to neglect the mode of living necessary for recovery."

The bulletin gives the analysis of a number of these nostrums, which are extensively advertised and sold at an enormous profit to the manufacturer, and points out wherein the use of the so-called cures does much more harm than good to the sufferer.

BROKE OUT OF HOUSE

Stole Employer's Table and Had to Take Off Door to Get It Out.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 30.—William Courtney, a coal wagon driver, stole a $15 mission dining room table from the home of his employer, James H. Loughman. The owner and his family were away from home and Courtney removed the front door of the house from its hinges to get the table out of the building. He pushed it in front of him to his home, a mile away, where he cut it into kindling wood the next morning when he learned the police were on his trail. He had burned the bulk of it when detectives found him. Courtney confessed and has been bound over to the grand jury for burglary. One of the most unusual features of the case is that he may go to the penitentiary, not for breaking into a house, but for breaking out, as he had to remove the front door to get the table out of the house. Courtney is married, has a large family, and went to prison ten years ago for a crime of much the same nature.

Lapel Youths in Jail.

Anedron, Ind., Aug. 30.—Lowell Ehrman and Raymond Goetz, young men of Lapel, have been arrested on a charge of petit larceny. They are accused of entering the home of Mrs. Juanita Roubush, at Lapel, and, after stealing watches and other small articles, sprinkling ink over everything, tearing down lace curtains, destroying furniture and breaking dishes. The young men are in jail.

A Boy and a Gun.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 30.—Lawrence Copeland, eighteen years old, jammed the butt of his repeating rifle on the ground in an effort to jar into place a cartridge which had stuck in the magazine. The gun exploded and the bullet struck the youth under the jaw and lodged in the brain. The boy became delirious and it took three men to hold him in the ambulance on the way to the hospital, where he died.

No Appointment at Present.

Port Wayne, Ind., Aug. 30.—Trustees of the Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth have decided that for the present they will appoint no successor to Superintendent Albert E. Carroll, who died a few days ago, but will take over the active management of the institution until there has been time for deliberation regarding the new superintendent.

Carried Out Her Threat.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 30.—Harold Sewell, aged forty, was shot and probably fatally wounded by his wife at their home in West Lafayette. Sewell had been away from home several days and his wife had threatened to kill him when he returned. She fired two shots as he came in the door and one took effect in his abdomen.

Will Consolidate Plants.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 30.—The Citizens' Telephone company of this city has bought all of the physical property of the Central Union Telephone company in Columbus and Bartholomew county. The two plants will be consolidated.

Wiley to Speak in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Aug. 30.—Dr. H. W. Wiley, former government chemist, will spend five days campaigning in Indiana for the Democrats.

STREET BUSINESS TAKES MUCH TIME.

Davison called for the report of the engineer upon the south Walnut street improvement, and the latter stated that he had his report ready to submit but desired that the inspector's report be read first. Davison objected to this and said that the inspector's report was not necessary and that the law only required a report from the city engineer. Some of the councilmen insisted that the inspector's report be read and an intermediate discussion followed as to the necessity of this report. Some of the councilmen said that they believed that the inspector's report should be read before the work was accepted, for if the council did not give any weight to his report there would be no use of having an inspector. Misch said that he believed that the duty of the inspector was to watch the work while being done and if the contract was not fulfilled according to the plans and specifications the inspector should order the work stopped. He was of the opinion that his report was not necessary in receiving the contract, as the law required that only the city engineer should pass upon the contract. Davison said that if the acceptance of such work depended upon the report of the inspector, the contracts could be held up for several weeks in case the inspector had grievances against the contractor, but that the legislature had anticipated such a condition and had placed the responsibility upon the engineer.

A. V. Lawell, who was appointed inspector on south Walnut street, was present and withdrew his report. He said that it had been made honestly and fairly according to his own belief and that he had not been prejudiced in preparing the statement. The contents of the report was not made public at the meeting as it was withdrawn.

The report of the engineer was then read and he stated that the contract had been completed according to the plans and specifications with the exception of a valley at Bruce street which he believed should be repaired. At the conclusion of the engineer's report, Davison offered a resolution accepting the work and ordering a prima facie assessment roll. The contract amounted to about $16,000. When the vote was taken the street was accepted by a vote of 4 to 3, Davison, Misch, Taskey and Buse voting, aye, and W. R. Day, Sherman Day and Hodapp voting, no. After the contract was received Ewing Shields, the contractor on Walnut street, said he would repair the channel at Bruce street at the council desired. He further explained that the channel had been changed three or four times and that he had tried to please everybody with the work, and that it had been done under the direction of the city engineer and several of the councilmen. After some discussion it was shown that the channel, as it now stands, was not constructed by Mr. Shields at all but that the work had been done by the city under the direction of Councilman Taskey. The city did the last work on this channel, as Mr. Shields had changed it several times at the direction of the councilmen and the city engineer had refused to spend further time upon it.

The meeting was the regular time for hearing remonstrances to the proposed sewer on east Fourth street emptying into Ewing street, and O. H. Montgomery, in behalf of a number of the Ewing street property owners, presented a remonstrance and stated that the sewer on Ewing street was not a general sewer; that it had been built for their own use and that it would not be just and fair for the property owners on Fourth street to tap into it. Roll Emery and Rev. J. F. Ranier, of Indianapolis, spoke in favor of the remonstrance and George Huber and Frank Bush made short talks in favor of the Fourth street property owners. It was finally decided to refer the matter to the board of public works, which meets in regular session tonight.

The John C. Groub Company was given the right of placing building material on St. Louis avenue while constructing their new ware room.

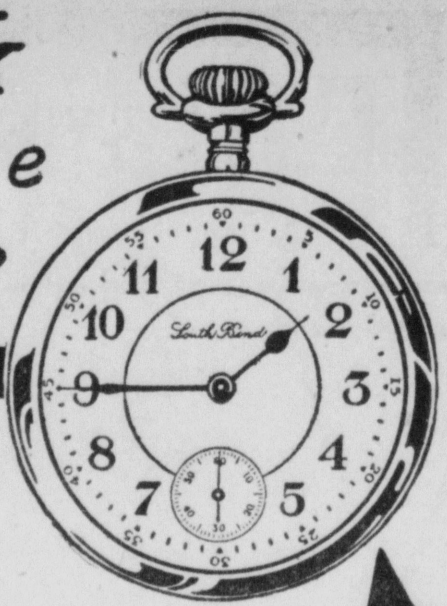

W. R. Day reported that the property owners on South Pine street desired to improve their sidewalks and the city engineer was ordered to give the grade stakes for the ditch. He also stated that there was a pile of broken tile on Walnut and Brown streets and at his suggestion the street commissioner was instructed to use this in filling up some holes on Laurel street and other places where needed.

The street commissioner was ordered to move a branch which had been blown down in front of the Baptist church.

The city engineer was instructed to construct manholes or make other improvements for the two sewers on Second and Ewing streets before the street was permanently improved. He reported that the other manholes on Ewing street had been placed as ordered.

Certificates for $2,800 were ordered in favor of DeGolyer and Company, contractors on Ewing street, the city engineer having reported that two blocks between Fifth and Seventh streets had been completed and that the approximate cost was $4,371.99. The certificates were issued for 65 per cent. of the amount of the work done.

The city clerk was instructed to purchase a record book for recording the payments which will be made by the property owners for the street improvements. The law requires that such a record be kept by the city treasurer and a special form has been prepared so that the entries under the Barrett law could be properly recorded.

The claims were read and allowed with the exception of one presented by O. H. Montgomery for legal work amounting to $35. This was for defending Officer Philip Thompson at a recent trial. The bill was referred to the city attorney for verification.

The claims allowed were as follows:

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

TAKUM FAOTUMU.

Put the name of Lieutenant Takum Faotumu of Japan high up in the list of heroes.

Do you remember how the world was shocked a few months ago by the appalling loss of all the lives of the officers and men on a submarine vessel of the Japanese navy?

Now a writer in one of the scientific journals gives the details.

This submarine, commanded by Lieutenant Faotumu, failed to rise, as was shown by the records when the vessel afterward was raised, on account of some failure in the apparatus.

The discovery was made about 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

At a depth of fathoms of sea water, the vessel was approaching death. Lieutenant Faotumu calmly undertook to write the story of the last hours. He wrote the full account up to 12:30, and the last words were:

"Respiration is becoming extraordinarily difficult. I am breathing gaso-lyne."

He told about the efforts to raise the vessel, of the despair that settled down upon officers and men, of how the lights went out, how they sat in gloom and how he was writing his final words in the darkness—details of interest to the world from which they were shut out.

And the finest words of all, words which evidence the gallant spirit of the heroic lieutenant, were these:

"I respectfully request that none of the families of my subordinates shall suffer. The only thing I am anxious about is this."

Made you

In all the writing there was no trace of any wailing or regret because of a cruel fate, no mourning over the untimely end of a brilliant career, no expression of fear, no appeal and no prayer. Simply, there in the darkness of his death prison, with the fumes of the gasoline in his nostrils and with death reaching for him at close quarters and with certain grip, he was only "anxious" about the families of those who were to die with him.

Can history further go? Surely Japan will be basely recreant to the memory of one of the bravest men in the annals of the Japanese—an admiral noted for their stories of intrepid soldiers and seamen—if it shall have failed properly to provide for those families.

And the world's history of gallant deeds has been enriched by the story of this Japanese officer who, dying, thought not of himself, but only of the wives and children that would be bereft.

Republican Convention.

The Republican county convention will be held in Seymour on Tuesday, September 10, 1912, and will be called to order at 1 p. m. The delegates to the county convention will be chosen by the Republicans in the several townships on Saturday, September 7. Each township will be entitled to one delegate and one alternate delegate for every twenty votes cast for Otis Guley in 1910. The Republicans of each township are called to meet in mass convention at time and place designated below to select their delegates.

Brownstown township—Place of meeting, Brownstown, time 1:30 p. m., delegates 9; alternates 9.

Carr township—Place of meeting, Medora; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 6; alternates 6.

Driftwood township—Place of meeting, Vallonia; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 6; alternate 6.

Grassy Fork township—Place of meeting, Tampico; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 4; alternates 4.

Hamilton township—Place of meeting, Cortland; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 6; alternates 6.

Jackson township—Place of meeting, Seymour; time 7:30 p. m.; delegates 3; alternates 3.

Owen township—Place of meeting, Clearspring; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 5; alternates 5.

Redding township—Place of meeting, Walnut Grove; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 4; alternates 4.

Salt Creek township—Place of meeting, Houston; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 4; alternates 4.

Vernon township—Place of meeting, Crothersville; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 10; alternates 10.

Washington township—Place of meeting, Dudleytown; time 1:30 p. m.; delegates 3; alternates 3.

Total number of delegates to be chosen 94; alternates 94.

The Republicans are all urged to attend both the township convention on Saturday, September 7, and the county convention on Monday, September 10. A good speaker, probably one of the candidates on the state ticket, will address the county convention.

GEORGE PETER,
County Chairman.

FARM COLONIES.

In New England, New Jersey and some other thickly settled sections of the eastern part of the United States what are known as farm colonies are multiplying. These agricultural colonies are generally made up of foreign-born peoples who come from the same district in Italy, Russia or Hungary. Farming areas of 1,000, 2,000 and sometimes 3,000 acres are purchased and divided up into ten and twenty acre allotments. On each of these small farms a family settles and engages in the growing of fruits and garden vegetables for the supply of the larger eastern cities, says the Baltimore American. Many abandoned New England farms are thus being restored to productive usage. Quite recently a 1,000-acre tract of land in Cecil county, located along the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, near Chesapeake City, has been purchased for a Polish farm colony. This land is to be cut up into ten-acre allotments, or into about one hundred small farms, upon which as many families will locate. The colony, it will be observed, is about midway between Baltimore and Philadelphia, and is in easy communication with both cities by water route, as well as by rail. Maryland has inviting inducements for many such colonies. In southern Maryland large areas suitable for cutting into small farms may be obtained at comparatively low cost. This land, in most instances, is splendidly adapted to the growing of fruits and vegetables. The soil is of far better average quality than the sandy soil of New Jersey. Upon ten acres of land farmed intensively not only a living can be made, but ultimate affluence may be attained.

What is a jay walker? We all know him and recognize him as a pest, but Kansas City was first in giving him a name and separate classification. The jay walker is the person who walks or loiters in crowded streets, totally indifferent to the rights and convenience of those he comes in contact with there. In crossing from one sidewalk to another he ignores the cross-walks and meanders among wagons, traction cars and automobiles with a recklessness that puts the drivers in danger of heart failure. On a crowded sidewalk he keeps to the left instead of to the right, roughly shouldering his way through the oncoming stream of humanity. He stops to talk with acquaintances on busy corners, planting himself where he will most interfere with the progress of the people passing by. On the narrow boardwalk in front of an excavation for a new building he leisurely surveys the operations going on behind the fence, compelling all who wish to pass to step off upon the dirty pavement.

In opposing his wife's suit for separation a Brooklyn man declared that he furnished a flat for his wife, gave her plenty of money to run it, hired servants, did part of the cooking himself, let his father-in-law go over his books to find out his income and has been a patient and submissive husband. Such a woman should have her petition dismissed if only on the ground of being so ignorant of her own welfare as not to know when she had a good thing.

That it is an ill wind which blows nobody good was proved in a most startling way by the experience of a Connecticut cottager who lost a wallet and then found it deposited at his door by a storm which blew it three miles across the water to its owner.

This is a cynical, mercenary age. The same news item that told us how a young man proposed to his sweetheart in Detroit by telephoning from Chicago added that it cost $4.85, just as if the expenditure might not have been justified.

The New York astronomer who predicts that before long man will be able to fly to the moon, may be right. There is not a thing in the world to prevent the feat except the law of gravitation.

Judging from the diction in a British newspaper they have "coppers" instead of "bobbies" in London, which must be getting awfully Americanized.

More than twenty metal articles were found by a surgeon in the stomach of a California woman. That's carrying the souvenir fad too far.

Green peas are said to promote frivolity. But with the man who tries to balance them on a fork, they promote something else.

Between the going and the return vacationer is all the difference between anticipation and realization.

Among other irritating products of the summer are the swimmers who dive before they look.

SAW FALL OF FORT SUMTER.

Capt. John A. Bunker White Aboard Coasting Schooner off Charleston Witnessed Battle.

On an April day in 1861, while the guns of Moultrie and Castle Pinckney were thundering against the walls of Fort Sumter, there lay at anchor outside the harbor at Charleston, S. C., a coasting schooner. From its low-lying deck its officers and crew of half a dozen sailors watched the artillery duel that proved to be the opening scene in the Civil War.

The schooner was the Pennsylvania, chartered by Boston shippers, and freighted with ice for Charleston. One of the crew that was thus privileged to be eyewitnesses of the first overt act of rebellion against the United States government, was John Allen Bunker, then aged 23, of Edgartown, Mass.

"I was 23 years of age at the time serving before the mast in the coasting trade. Our craft, which was schooner-rigged, was owned in Rockland, Me. Early in April, 1861, we sailed out of Boston, carrying 250 tons of ice consigned to parties in Charleston, S. C. Of course we had heard for several months mutterings of impending trouble, and we knew that Maj. Anderson had transferred his command from the shore fortifications to Fort Sumter and was holding for Uncle Sam, but I think not a soul on board the Pennsylvania, our schooner, realized the seriousness of the situation. I know I felt no hesitation about making the trip.

"After rounding Cape Cod we ran down the coast without special delay, so far as I can remember, and in about five days, I should say, we were off Charleston, and headed for the channel leading to the city.

"Fort Sumter was being bombarded. We were four miles away but we could see the flash of the guns in Moultrie and other shore fortifications. Over all hung a great volume of smoke.

"What did we do? Why there was but one thing for the captain to do—drop the anchor, and await the outcome. It would have been suicidal to have attempted to run the gauntlet off that heavy crossfire. Yes, we were held up all right, and so through the afternoon we swung at anchor and watched the battle, too far away to judge whether one side or the other was gaining an advantage.

"There was mighty little sleep on the Pennsylvania that night, and when the morning broke every eye was strained harborwards to see whether the old flag was still flying over Sumter. We could not make it out, and our fears were realized when later a harbor pilot boarded us and told us Sumter had fallen.

"Under his guidance we worked our way up the channel past the now silent forts of the city. There all was excitement. Nothing but the victory gained by the South Carolina soldiers was talked about, and a Yankee sailor was not enthusiastically welcomed.

"That port officers advised our captain to discharge his cargo without delay and get away while there was a chance. We took the hint and lost no time in acting upon it. In considerable less than forty-eight hours our cargo was hoisted out and we had said 'goodby' to Charleston.

"We Swung at Anchor and Watched the Battle."

"The next time I sailed to that port was about one year later, I should say, and then we carried stone instead of ice. You see, it was this way: The government did not have enough armed vessels to maintain an effective blockade of the long-stretching Atlantic seaboard, and it was decided to obstruct the channels leading to certain ports, of which Charleston was one, with sunken vessels. The government purchased sixteen ships that had been formerly employed in the whaling business, picking them up in New London, Sag Harbor, Nantucket and New Bedford.

"These sunken hulls formed only a temporary obstruction, of course, for the constant shifting of the sand on the bar, and the action of the waves would eventually cause them to break up and wash away, but I reckon they served the purpose intended at the time."

Remarkable Sworn Statement of a New Brunswick Druggist.

Have sold your Swamp-Root for twenty-eight years and have known its valuable curative properties for the past twenty years. For kidney, liver and bladder troubles, I have never known a single case where it has failed to relieve and cure. Right in my own household Swamp-Root cured my wife of catarrh of the bladder, while it cured me of liver and bladder troubles.

Numerous cases have come under my personal observation, which has made me very enthusiastic about recommending Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to anyone suffering from kidney, liver and bladder troubles, and I have the greatest confidence in its merits. Have never heard any customers who have given Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a trial speak of it in the highest terms. Yours respectfully,

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Seymour People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Seymour residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. L. Sage, 319 W. Tipton St., Seymour, Ind., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are thoroughly reliable and can recommend them. I took this remedy a year ago when my back was so painful and lame that I could not stoop. My kidneys were weak and I was languid and nervous. My head often ached so badly that I thought it would split. Doan's Kidney Pills removed all the pains and aches and made my kidneys normal. I have told many other people about my experience and it gives me pleasure to do so. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and in each case benefit has been received."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

SECRET OF SUCCESS

Self-Reliance the Big Essential in Modern Business Life

ERRAND BOY STEPPED UP

Training Acquired in Various Positions Gave Him the Necessary Equipment to Handle Big Affairs as the Man at the Top.

From errand boy in a small hardware store to the presidency of one of the largest banks in Chicago sounds like a long, hard road to travel. It is the experience of Mr. Ernest Hamill, now president of the Corn Exchange bank of Chicago. The story of how he achieved success is as short as it is interesting.

Hamill was born in Bloomington, Ind., but he was not a Hoosier very long. When he was nine months old his parents moved to Chicago. He went through the public schools, like hundreds of other boys, and attended high school.

Before the time came to finish he grew impatient and went to work. He had four brothers working in banks, and he wanted to take up the same work. For some reason or other his father wanted him to try some other vocation.

The boy found his first duties with Edwin Hunt, a hardware man.

Mr. Hamill said: "My first pay was not large, according to our present scale of wages. I got $300 the first year. I thought that this was a princely salary, for I lived at home and my wants were few. I worked there six years. I was such a long-legged fellow for my age that my employer soon put me on the road. I liked the work, for it gave me a chance to study people and conditions. I later found this experience of great value. It taught me self-reliance. Before that time I had never been away from home five nights in my life."

By this time, through hard work and economy, Mr. Hamill had accumulated some money and started on the board of trade. He found this work exceedingly different, but the insight into conditions and human nature gained as clerk in a hardware store stood him in good stead. "I found this work strenuous," said Mr. Hamill, "and requiring nerve. But I did plenty of hard work and worried as little as possible. I was on the board during the Harper and Fairbank panics, but the training I had on the road taught me to keep my grip."

At the end of ten years Mr. Hamill was made honorary vice-president of the Corn Exchange bank. This was a different experience than his other position had given him. He was even more surprised when sixty days later the president of the bank went to Europe and he was offered his position.

"I am confident that if a man wishes to make good in a bank or in any other line of important work he must have a strong and self-reliant character," said Mr. Hamill. "He must value truth and integrity above all other things. He must have a natural taste for his work and plenty of common sense. Common sense is always above par and is a rarer quality than we think it is. It is not necessary to be a genius nor even brilliant. It is better to be well rounded instead of being brilliant in spots. To be a successful banker one must be rational, not easily excited, and be able to read human nature."

Mr. Hamill says opportunities to hold lucrative and responsible positions in banks and elsewhere are far better than when he started to work. He says: "There is plenty of room on top, though things may be a little crowded below. Heads of banks are continually on the lookout for capable and self-reliant men; there are often vacancies of this kind, but not the men for the place."

"For capital alone cannot run any business. It takes brains and the combined thinking power of ten men better than one man alone. If there is no vacancy higher up in a bank in which a man is working, he can always get something in a smaller bank or in a large bank in a smaller city. I am confident that if a man loves his work and is determined to succeed he has splendid opportunities in a bank and in a hundred different callings."

Trained Men Scarce.

The demand for trained and experienced men is never supplied. Most business and industrial organizations find their growth impeded by the dearth of such men. To employ men trained by competitors or by inferior organizations is expensive and unsatisfactory. A man trained till he has become valuable to his "parent organization" is not likely to be equally valuable to other organizations that might employ him at a later time. In general, the most valuable men in any organization are the men who have grown up in it.—Business.

Get Out of the Rut.

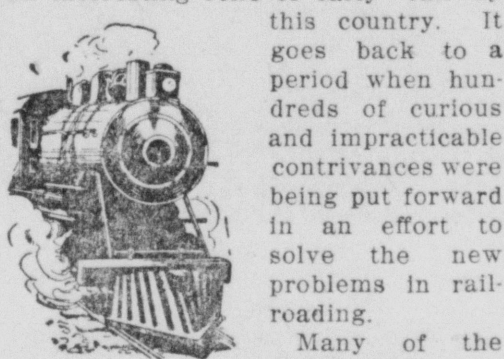

The man who wonders why the other fellow was advanced above him, why he doesn't get an increase in salary, why he's the first to be laid off when business is slack, why he's always so "unlucky," who patiently plods along without hope, or energy to attain anything better, could get out of the rut quickly if he would break away from the "wait-a-minute" habit.

FAMOUS OLD ENGINES

ONE BUILT IN 1847 STILL IN USE
ON CUBAN RAILROAD.

Locomotives Which Played Their Part in the Evolution of the Modern Powerful Machines Are Still Doing Service.

On a Cuban railroad at Santiago is an interesting relic of early railway this country. It goes back to a period when hundreds of curious and impracticable contrivances were being put forward in an effort to solve the new problems in rail-roading.

Many of the development in the evolution of the modern immense and powerful locomotives are still in existence. A few of them are even in actual use. And the Railroad Men's Magazine is performing a service to the history of science and industry by collecting records and pictures of these interesting and significant factors in the development of the country.

The one now used on the Cuban railroad has nothing of the freakish about it. That is, it was not a freak when it was built, though naturally it looks rather curious now. But it is especially interesting because it is the oldest Baldwin locomotive still in running order. Constructed in 1847 by M. W. Baldwin and placed at once on the rails for service, it is still being used. Few, if any, of the original parts have been replaced.

It has no air brake and no trucks. The slanting cylinders are 16 by 26 inches and the left engine is the leading engine. There are two scales for safety valves. The smokestack is seven feet four inches high and four feet six inches in diameter at the larger end.

When the St. Louis exposition was held in 1904 the Baldwin company, anxious to include the old engine in its exhibit, offered the Cuban road a locomotive of the type then most modern, but the Cubans refused the offer.

It was only an accident that caused the construction of the Judah, the first engine to cross the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains. A lumber company in Nevada purchased from the Southern Pacific company an engine which had formerly been used on the run from Sacramento and Folsom. The Judah proved to be inefficient as a switcher in the lumber yards and was abandoned.

While on the Southern Pacific it was used to pull Senator Leland Stanford's pay car over the division. The locomotive was built by the Vulcan Iron works in 1865. The plate on the head end reads, "Vulcan Iron Works, O. 6, 1865." The forward wheels are stamped "C. P. R. R., 1884," and were evidently cast in Sacramento, Cal.

The Judah will probably be sold back to the railroad and placed on exhibition at the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915. It is now the property of the Sierra Nevada Wood and Lumber company of Hobart Mills, Cal.

One of the most thrilling incidents of the Civil war was that in which the old engine, the Texas, played so important a part. William J. Knight, an engineer who served as a private in company E of the Twenty-first Ohio infantry, was selected by his captain, L. E. Brewster, to attempt to steal a Confederate train which was being hauled by the famous locomotive, the General. James J. Andrews, the famous Kentucky scout and raider, was chosen as fireman. Their company was encamped at Shelbyville, Tenn.

After reconnoitering, they clambered on the engine while the crew was absent at breakfast, uncoupled a few of the cars in order that they might make the best time possible, opened up the throttle and steamed away. The Confederates soon learned of the disappearance of the train and, suspecting a Union plot, started in pursuit. At Adairsville, where Knight was obliged to sidetrack to permit a freight train to pass, the pursuers came into sight. Captain Fuller was in charge of the Confederate party.

At Adairsville he abandoned his locomotive, and the Texas was used in its place. With sparks flying from its drivers the Texas gradually drew up and Knight and Andrews, having used all the fuel in the tender, were obliged to abandon the General. They were captured, and later escaped from the Atlanta prison. The Texas is now resting peacefully in San Antonio, Tex.

How Tailors Sew on Buttons.

Tailors double their thread used to sew on buttons and make a knot and hold the knot in the teeth while they twist the thread, then they wax it, and that keeps it twisted.

Then they put a pin across the button and after the buttons are sewed on they remove the pin and wind the thread around several times, making a kind of a stem. This makes it more easy to button the garment. The buttons on children's waists should be sewed in this way so more than one garment can be buttoned on the same waist.—National Magazine.

Keeps the Water in.

Concrete water barrels used for fire protection on a railroad in the south show no loss of water except by evaporation.

Clam Chowder

Tommy Dewitt managed by living frugally in summer to pay his winter's expenses at college. As soon as the school year closed, Tommy was off for parts unknown, and it would have interested his friends mightily if they could have seen him living like Robinson Crusoe on an island off the coast of Maine, catching his own fish, setting his own lobster pots, planting vegetables in a tiny garden and making chowder out of a handful of clams, two potatoes and an onion.

That the result of the last-named recipe was appetizing was proved by the fact that four people landing on the beach from a motor boat sniffed with appreciation.

"It's a clam bake," said the youngest of the crowd, a girl in a white serge suit with a short blue reefer. "Oh, I'm so glad, for I am starved."

Further progress showed a fire with a small iron pot set over the coals. A savory steam rose from the pot.

"But there isn't much of it," said the girl.

"Who's been eating my soup?" quoted a gay voice, and around the corner of a sandhill came Tommy.

"Oh," said the four intruders, staring. And well might they stare, for while Tommy lived like Robinson Crusoe, he wore a snowy white middie blouse and white trousers, his fair hair was brushed up from his forehead and shone in the sunlight, and his strong young figure showed the effect of good training and outdoor sports.

"We don't mean to intrude," said the oldest lady of the crowd, "but we are exploring the islands; we didn't know this one was inhabited."

"And there's something the matter with our boat," said the girl in the blue reefer, "and being women, we don't know how to fix it."

"Delighted," said poor Tommy. "But I hope you're not keen for chowder. There's only a taste. You see, I cook for one; but such as it is, it's yours."

He busied himself in serving the simple meal. And while he worked he listened. The girl's name, he discovered, was Helena.

"You enjoy living the simple life?" said the oldest dame, whose name was Mrs. Griggs.

Tommy nodded. "It's great," he said. "If you will stay for supper we'll have broiled fish and baked potatoes, and there's some lettuce left in my garden."

"We'll stay," said the girl, "if you'll fix our boat."

All that afternoon Tommy tinkered and the girl watched him while the three elderly ladies took a nap in the warm sand.

Then Tommy went out and caught a fish, and broiled it over the coals.

"And I'm sorry to tell you, ladies," he said, as he served it, "that your boat isn't mended, and that you will have to make yourselves comfortable for the night. I shall be glad to offer you the hospitality of my tent. In the morning a boat stops here with provisions. You can leave on that."

Since there was nothing else to be done, they consented, and after the fish was eaten Tommy and the girl walked down the beach.

They talked of many things; and Tommy lay awake half the night, wondering how he had believed that life was worth living until now.

He slept on the other side of the sandhill from the tent, and waked at dawn. After a plunge in the sea, he went forth in his snowy white suit to face the sunrise.

The girl was up and came down to the beach to meet him in the stillness of the wonderful morning.

"The sea is like a pearl," she whispered, "and the sky like an opal."

Tommy was breathing quickly. "Look here," he said. "The boat comes early, and before it comes I've got something to say to you—something to say—to you."

She smiled up at him frankly. "Look here," he said, again, "you're the most wonderful thing in the world. Yesterday I was a boy trying to go through college and living any old way in the summer to help meet expenses. Today I'm a man, ready to fight life to the finish—to get you."

"I haven't a right to ask anything of you, but I've got to tell you this—that if you don't find the one man before I can come to you and fight it out with the rest of them, that you won't compromise and take some other fellow just because you're tired of waiting for the real thing."

Then because he saw Mrs. Griggs at the door of the tent, he went up the sands to meet her, and the girl was left standing where his burning words had beat upon her.

Breakfast was a feast at which the three older ladies ate heartily of lobster, and at which Tommy and the girl ate nothing.

"I'm not hungry," Helena insisted when urged, "and before the boat comes I want to walk to the end of the island—to—to—"

And when they had rounded the curve of the sands and were out of sight, he asked: "Have you forgiven me?"

"There is nothing to forgive," the girl said, "and I shall never forget—because I shall want to remember—and I shall want to wait."

MEANS BETTER PAY

Efficiency the One Great Thing
the Worker Should Seek to Attain.

SOUGHT BY BIG BUSINESS

Necessity for Efficient Methods and the Saving of Money in Every Way Is More and More Coming to Be Realized by Employees.

"The fact that 1,000 of the leading business and professional men of the United States have formed a society for the promotion of efficiency in business is the best possible evidence of the value of conserving the time, energy and resources of both employees and employers," declared Bion J. Arnold of Chicago, who was chosen as one of the directors of the new organization recently in New York.

"The big business interests are coming more and more to realize the necessity for efficient methods, and they are saving money in every conceivable way. Not only that, but they are safeguarding the health and strength of employees and are arranging their work so that it is accomplished with a minimum of effort. One of the most beneficial results of the efficiency movement, viewed from the standpoint of the worker, is the better sanitary arrangements and more comfortable quarters that are being provided. Employers are beginning to realize that healthy workers can do more and better work in clean, comfortable buildings than they can when conditions are just the opposite.

"The person who has an idea that the big corporations are wasting money these days is mistaken. On the contrary, every penny is being watched as carefully as if it were a dollar.

"I recently read an article which contained the best definition of efficiency I ever heard. It is to the effect that efficiency aims to make the work easy by doing away with all obstacles to good work. It is efficient to have a shop sanitary, because healthy employees can work better and their benches are not idle. It is efficient to provide machinery with safety guards, because law suits are expensive, as is also the training of new men to take the place of disabled employees. True efficiency is more interested in the welfare of the human machine than in any other part of the workings of a plant.

"Efficiency is one of the two ways of permanently increasing wages. The only other way is by raising the cost to the consumer. Harrington Emerson, an efficiency expert, declares that the efficiency of men taken as a whole is less than five per cent., that in the aggregate only 60 per cent. of materials are efficiently utilized, and that the efficiency of equipment is less than 30 per cent. He says that the truth of his statements can as readily be verified as can an assayer duplicate the assay of an ore sample.

"If that is true, then surely there is an urgent need for efficiency in every line of business. And the best part of efficiency is that the more it is practiced the more it will benefit competing firms. For instance, a New Jersey silk manufacturer has a plant which is said to be a model of efficiency. As a result, his cost of production is phenomenally low. Instead of keeping his methods secret, he invites others in the same line to visit his factory and learn his system. In explanation of his attitude he says he can sell as low as anyone can and pay a profit, and that the better business methods his competitors use the more stable will the silk business become.

"Efficiency methods can be used just as effectively in a small business as in a large one. The principle is the same in all. It is saving in the small things that counts most, both as regards time, materials and labor. No business can hope to succeed in these days of strong competition unless it is operated on a systematic plan."

The Altruistic Spirit.

A man of narrow prejudices believes that all the world must do as he does, think as he does, go up and down as he does. Unfortunately, there are just such men today. They have never heard of the altruistic spirit, and they would hardly understand a definition of it. In his "Thoughts on the Conduct of the Understanding," Basil Montague says: "Of prejudice it has been truly said that it has the singular ability of accommodating itself to all the possible varieties of the human mind. . . . Let the mind be as empty as the walls of an empty and forsaken tenement, gloomy as a dungeon, or ornamented with the richest abilities of thinking; let it be hot, cold, dark or light, lonely or inhabited, still prejudice, if undisturbed, will fill it with cobwebs, and live like the spider where there seems nothing to live on."

WORKING FOR A LIVING

HARD TO CONVINCE IDLE THEY SHOULD BE DOERS.

True Animal Story That Can Be Applied to Men and Women and Fit Like a Glove.

It is hard to convince rich, idle people that it would be well for them if they had to work. Here is a true story that if taken as a parable may attract their attention. It is a parable only in that it relates to one of what we call the lower animals, but it can be applied to men and women so as to fit their case like a glove.

The animal was the eland in Central Park, New York. When he was brought into the open inclosure this year he was in the position of the idle rich among mankind. He had nothing to do but eat and sleep and play. He became bored, declined in health, almost ceased to eat. Then the keeper, who seems to be a wise man, decided that life was too easy for him. His wisdom being practical, he began by hiding the eland's food under a box and weighting the box down so that it took strength and some intelligence to move it. At first the eland did not care, but presently curiosity and hunger both impelled to learn about that box. He may have smelled the food; he may have been stimulated by the presence of hunger and the apparent absence of food to begin hunting for the means of subsistence. At any rate, after a time he applied himself to getting into that box, broke it to pieces and ate with renewed appetite. The next time the food was hidden in a different place, and the eland continued to find and eat it and began to improve in condition.

So much for the physical side. He was still discontented. He did not enjoy life, although he was well nourished. Now for mental occupation, said the keeper himself, or words to that effect. He put a large pinwheel outside the inclosure. Most wild animals are curious, the deer family perhaps more than some others. When the wheel spun in the wind the eland could not help watching it; when it stood still he was still interested, perhaps in its different appearance, perhaps in wondering when it would start. He improved in spirits and condition day by day. He had occupation and amusement and he became a healthy, cheerful creature again.

Does the parable need any explanation?

MODESTY WINS IN BUSINESS

Gentle Manner and Winning Voice Always Win Friends, Especially in Commercial World.

Successful business men value their time often more than the best line of goods you can give them. If you beat about the bush to a tactful man he will show his impatience by scowling, and if you do the same thing to a candid man he will exclaim, "Well, what can I do for you?"

Coming to the point does not mean aggressiveness. Modesty wins even in business. It is especially valuable in combating an aggressive nature. A positive and negative force prevails in business as well as in electricity. A gentle manner and a pleasant voice always win friends, especially in the business world.

They give greater weight to your logical and concise facts. A convincing manner shows perfect self-control, and a knowledge of men. Show that you have something worth while to say and offer by your voice, your carriage, and walk. This is poise, and poise means that you are even more confident of your goods than of yourself. This says to your customer, "I have come to force this on you."

Mr. Kleiser says the time has come when business men along with all others must educate their faculties. They must learn how to overcome obstacles and to break down barriers by stating the value of goods. It is your business to see your argument from the beginning and to express it with clearness and precision.

If you wish to win in business it is your duty not alone to analyze the science of business but the thinking of your mind. You may imagine that it is as natural for you to think clearly and logically as it is to breathe. It is not. The fewest are given this gift, but it can be acquired by years of hard work and a desire to win.

By Long Distance

Mrs. Adams beamed in conscious pride as she lifted the telephone receiver from the hook.

"Oh, I just know it's Jane," she murmured, ecstatically, to her caller, as she waited. "You'll excuse me, won't you? It won't take long, and we're going to call each other up every single week while she's at college. You see, this is her first week and I just know—"

"Yes, yes. Hello! Yes, this is Mrs. Adams. Oh, Jane, is that you. Your voice sounded just as natural. You poor child, you must be terribly lonely!" (Aside—"She's never been away before.")

"Oh, I'm so glad you like it!" (Aside—"She's so brave.")

"You're just getting settled? Haven't started your studies yet? Don't know what you'll take? That's right, dear, be sure you're comfortable first."

"Yes, darling, I'll be glad to make it. Chocolate, you say? Are you sure it won't be crushed in the express? Oh, very well. Just a moment, until I get a pencil and paper to put down the address."

(Aside—"She's asking me to send her a cake. They're to have a spread, and she promised to furnish the cake. Isn't that just like her, to offer to help right away? Jane is always so anxious to help others. You must excuse me—when I think of her away off there all alone, and no one to do things for her, it brings tears to my eyes! Oh, dear, where shall I find pencil and paper?")

"Here I am, Jane, dear. It's so hard to find writing material in this house. There! Yes, I have it. I'll make it tonight and take it right over to the express office. Yes, I'll make a few of those rocks, too, and—all right, some ginger nuts, too. Oh, I'll put in lots of good things, to surprise you."

"Is your bed soft, dear? Have you enough coverings? Oh, just a minute, dear, there goes the door bell." (Mrs. Adams hastens to the door, returning in about five minutes.)

"Hello, Jane! It was your Aunt May, in the auto. She wanted to take me out. No, I told her I didn't want to go. She said Jim is engaged to that Smith girl. Yes, it's a shame. I'll never get over being glad that you were a girl instead of a boy."

"So you like the girls? I'm so glad! One's friends count for so much when one's away from home!"

"Isn't it lovely to have the telephone! I've been counting, ever since you left, on talking with you! It almost seems as if you were at home, here!"

"Be careful, won't you, dear, not to get your feet wet, and to wear your warm coat, if it's the least bit damp. And don't study too hard. Ambition is all right, but don't overdo it, dear. You've got your whole life before you. What? You wish you had another party dress? Your pink is too plain! Well, I'll see if Mrs. Simmons can make another for you. Write me just how you want it made, and we'll have it there before the dance."

"You want to join a sorority? All right. But be careful to get in with the nicest girls, won't you? I trust you perfectly."

"Well, be good, and don't miss us too much—and write often—and call me up soon, won't you—whenever you're lonely? Goodbye."

"Why, central! It was not! The idea! Twenty minutes? Why, we talked only about three minutes. Five at the most. Well, could I help it if the doorbell rang, and I had to leave for a while? Why, I most assuredly did not have the wire when I was at the door! Very well, send the bill, and we shall see!" She thumped down the telephone receiver.

"The idea! Charming for twenty minutes, when I just said hello to Jane. I shall tell my husband! They think they can do anything they please, but he'll talk to them! Poor Jane! She's so lonely! And these selfish telephone people won't let me talk without charging such awful prices!"

Mania for Palaces.

The discovery of an intruder at Marlborough House, in London, is reminiscent of the adventures of "the boy Jones" in the early years of Queen Victoria's reign. In December, 1840, he gained access to Buckingham palace and secreted himself there for several days. He was detected by the princess's royal nurse and handed over to the police.

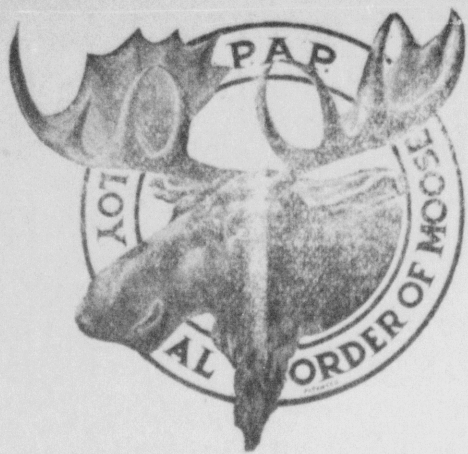

The privy council examined him, but did not think there was any cause for alarm, and he was sentenced to three months imprisonment as a rogue and vagabond. But no sooner was he at liberty than he made two other attempts to enter the palace. On the last occasion the magistrate gave him the chance of enlisting in the navy, where he was speedily cured of his mania for acquiring a royal domicile.

Sleek and Tired of It.

Gracie was entertaining unexpected visitors while her mother dressed, and the ladies, during a lull in the rather strained conversation, fell to spelling out sentences about her.

"Rather a quaint child," said one, trusting to the child's implied ignorance of her letters.

"Yes," complained Gracie before the other lady could reply, "but she can't help it, an' she's awful tired of being called quaint."

CLAM BAKE.
The members of the Elk lodge enjoyed their annual clam bake at the Elk's Cabin west of the city Thursday night. This affair has become one of great interest to the lodge and about seventy-five were present last night. The bake was in charge of a competent chef, and clams, spring chickens, potatoes, corn and other vegetables were served.

ENTERTAINED.
Mrs. B. F. Schneek gave a party for the members of the Magazine Club Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Mark Williams. The afternoon was pleasantly spent by the ladies. Elegant refreshments were served.

HIS CONFIDENCE.

"Well, George," she called from the top of the stairs at 1 a. m., "what was it this time? Did your lodge meet or was it necessary for you to stay in town to discuss business with somebody who had to catch a midnight train, or did you drop in at the club and get into a friendly little game with some of the boys, or was it an extra rush of work at the office?"

He clung to the newel post for a moment and, blinking, looked up at her. Then he endeavored to moisten his lips and said:

"Mary, if I didn't have confidensh in you I'd think you were shushpicious of me—hones, I would."

Would Be a Shame Not to Stay. "I think, dear," said her mother, "we will start for home this morning."

"Oh, no, mother. I don't want to go yet. Let us wait until tomorrow, anyhow?"

"Why till tomorrow?"

"There's one young man here who hasn't proposed to me yet. I think if I can have one more evening I shall be able to go home with a batting average of 1,000."

COMES HIGH.

The Parson—Honesty is a good thing.

The Politician—Yes; but you've got to make a bunch of money before you can afford it.

The Best Medium.
These signboard people may be wise, but I confess
That when I want to advertise I use the press.

A Courageous Physician.
Doctor—Mrs. Knagg, your husband needs six months' rest. Half of it he must spend in Europe.

Mrs. Knagg—Oh, splendid! I shall be delighted to go there.

Doctor—That's what I've planned. You can go for three months after he returns. That will give a full six months' rest.

Some of Them.
Mrs. Crimmonbeak—They say that a man who is about to be married is always lucky.

Mr. Crimmonbeak—Well, I was reading only today that during the last century seven instances were recorded in the British Isles in which the bride married the best man by mistake.

Fully Equipped.
Exultantly the writer of short stories closed the book of synonyms he had been examining for an hour or more. "I've found ninety-seven totally different words I can use in place of the verb 'said!'" he exclaimed.
This indispensable detail having been attended to, he began writing his story.

He Was.
"Here's a stone I got at a bargain the other day," said the man with the dyed mustache. "I'd like to have you tell me whether it's a real diamond or not."

The jeweler examined it. "Paste," he decided, handing it back. "Stuck!" exclaimed the other.

THEN HE UNDERSTOOD.

First Guest (at reception)—Have you a speaking acquaintance with that lady in black?

Second Guest—No; I have a listening acquaintance with her. She has a speaking acquaintance with me.

First Guest—I don't understand.

Second Guest—She's my wife.

His Share.
A pugilist got badly whipped. Yet life to him was sunny: For every time a blow would land He'd think about the money.

Giving Him Benefit of the Doubt.
"His wife looks as if she had some secret sorrow."

"Yes, but don't blame him too hastily. Her shoes may be too tight."

NATURALIZATION PAPERS REQUIRED

Registry Law Make Them Necessary
For Each Voter Born in Foreign Country Unless Father Voted.

MANY HAVE VOTED FOR YEARS

Several Jackson County Citizens Find Themselves in an Unusual Situation as Result of Law.

A number of voters, who were born in foreign countries but have lived in Jackson county practically all of their lives, have just come to the realization that they have never taken out naturalization papers and although they have been voting for many years, they have not legally been entitled to the right of suffrage. This fact has been brought out by the new registration law for when such voters registered they were informed that they would not be permitted to vote as they had no proof that they were legally American citizens.

Some of the men, who find themselves facing this condition, are among the most prominent in the county and they were greatly surprised to hear that they were not entitled to a vote. A number of naturalization papers have already been filed with the county clerk and others will be filed out before September 6, which is the next date for registration.

Under the law a voter born in a foreign country is required to take out two sets of naturalization papers before he is entitled to a vote unless his father has been naturalized and has voted in previous elections. With the first set of papers a foreign born citizen must swear that it is his intention to become a citizen of America and that he has been a resident of the country for six months. This entitles him to vote at any election within two years after he takes out such papers. After the expiration of that time it is necessary for him to take out the second set of papers stating that he has been a resident of the country for two years and that he is ready to swear allegiance to the United States. The effect of these papers is not large and they may be secured from the county clerk.

Henry Drinkenberg, a well known farmer of Hamilton township, is one of the voters who has found that he is not legally entitled to a vote although he has lived in Jackson county since 1873 and has been voting at every election for thirty-five years. Mr. Drinkenberg came to America with his father in 1871 and settled in Kentucky. Two years later he came to Jackson county but his father died a short time afterwards and before he had exercised his privilege of suffrage. As his father had never voted in America, it is necessary for Mr. Drinkenberg to take out naturalization papers even at this late date before he could register and be entitled to a vote at the November election. He said that there were a number of other people in his community who were facing the same problem and that they were making arrangements to take out the necessary papers at once. Some of the voters of the county who have lived here practically their entire lives and whose vote has never been challenged, think it strange that they would not be entitled to vote now and have investigated the new law closely.

It is said that there are quite a number of voters in the county who are bitterly opposed to the registration law and have stated that they will not register this fall. Of course such voters will not be entitled to cast a ballot at the fall election, as the law states specifically that every voter must register at one of the three registration days named.

To Dry Lace Curtains.
Housekeepers who possess quilting frames but not curtain stretchers will find the former an excellent substitute for the stretchers in drying their lace curtains of various sizes. The frames with clamps can be made to fit any curtains if not too long, in which case they may be turned back.

Pin the curtains along the sides, then fit the frames, not pulling the lace too much. The next curtains may be "hooked" on the same pins. After three curtains are on it is well to put on the next with more pins. As many as six large curtains may be dried at one time in this way.

Found Wanting.
"What makes you think Biggis is a patriotic citizen?"

"Why, he isn't as much interested in the score of the local baseball club as he is in a convention away off in some distant town."
